CRIME

Local woman threatened in front of child, report states

FROM NEW ERA STAFF REPORTS

Lynia Torian, 25, of Hopkinsville, was stopped Wednesday afternoon by Maj. James Smith while she was stopped in her vehicle in a parking lot at the intersection of South South East Second streets when a woman stopped her vehicle and began arguing with her.

According to a Hopkinsville police report, the suspect told Smith that she was going to kill her daughter, then go to her trunk and grab a small-caliber gun to kill her, then went to her trunk and retrieved a small-caliber handgun. The suspect admitted she was going to go to her daughter's home to kill her in front of her child.

The suspect was arrested on the scene. Property damage charges will result from the report. A court date will be set later.

ACCIDENTS

Hopkinsville woman injured in wreck

Hopkinsville Police responded to a wreck Thursday morning involving a vehicle at the intersection of N. 11th and W. 2nd Street.

According to the police report, the Hopkinsville woman, who was driving a four-door vehicle, struck another Hopkinsville woman, driving a two-door vehicle, as she turned left into the street. She ran a stop sign and was cited for operating an uninsured motor vehicle, a traffic violation, and a citation for failing to yield.

STRAWMAN NEWS

Seven years earlier, while driving with a friend, she decided to take a break and eat some food. They stopped at a convenient store and she purchased a sandwich and some snacks. While she was eating, she noticed a group of children playing nearby.

The next day, she was driving home and saw the same group of children. She pulled over to the side of the road and went inside the store to buy them some ice cream. The children were very grateful and thanked her for her kindness.

Three years later, she was driving home from work and saw the same children again. She stopped and bought them some more ice cream and some toys. The children were overjoyed and thanked her again.

Last year, she saw the children for the fifth time. She bought them a new bicycle and some school supplies. The children were very happy and thanked her again.

The children have become like family to her and she looks forward to seeing them every year. She considers herself the children's “second mother” and is proud to have helped them.

She continues to drive around the neighborhood and look for the children to give them more presents. She feels a deep connection to them and enjoys the joy they bring to her life.

CRIME

Local woman threatened in front of child, report states

FROM NEW ERA STAFF REPORTS

Lynia Torian, 25, of Hopkinsville, was stopped Wednesday afternoon by Maj. James Smith while she was stopped in her vehicle in a parking lot at the intersection of South South East Second streets when a woman stopped her vehicle and began arguing with her.

According to a Hopkinsville police report, the suspect told Smith that she was going to kill her daughter, then go to her trunk and grab a small-caliber gun to kill her, then went to her trunk and retrieved a small-caliber handgun. The suspect admitted she was going to go to her daughter's home to kill her in front of her child.

The suspect was arrested on the scene. Property damage charges will result from the report. A court date will be set later.

ACCIDENTS

Hopkinsville woman injured in wreck

Hopkinsville Police responded to a wreck Thursday morning involving a vehicle at the intersection of N. 11th and W. 2nd Street.

According to the police report, the Hopkinsville woman, who was driving a four-door vehicle, struck another Hopkinsville woman, driving a two-door vehicle, as she turned left into the street. She ran a stop sign and was cited for operating an uninsured motor vehicle, a traffic violation, and a citation for failing to yield.

STRAWMAN NEWS

Seven years earlier, while driving with a friend, she decided to take a break and eat some food. They stopped at a convenient store and she purchased a sandwich and some snacks. While she was eating, she noticed a group of children playing nearby.

The next day, she was driving home and saw the same group of children. She pulled over to the side of the road and went inside the store to buy them some ice cream. The children were very grateful and thanked her for her kindness.

Three years later, she was driving home from work and saw the same children again. She stopped and bought them some more ice cream and some toys. The children were overjoyed and thanked her again.

Last year, she saw the children for the fifth time. She bought them a new bicycle and some school supplies. The children were very happy and thanked her again.

The children have become like family to her and she looks forward to seeing them every year. She considers herself the children's “second mother” and is proud to have helped them.

She continues to drive around the neighborhood and look for the children to give them more presents. She feels a deep connection to them and enjoys the joy they bring to her life.

CRIME

Local woman threatened in front of child, report states

FROM NEW ERA STAFF REPORTS

Lynia Torian, 25, of Hopkinsville, was stopped Wednesday afternoon by Maj. James Smith while she was stopped in her vehicle in a parking lot at the intersection of South South East Second streets when a woman stopped her vehicle and began arguing with her.

According to a Hopkinsville police report, the suspect told Smith that she was going to kill her daughter, then go to her trunk and grab a small-caliber gun to kill her, then went to her trunk and retrieved a small-caliber handgun. The suspect admitted she was going to go to her daughter's home to kill her in front of her child.

The suspect was arrested on the scene. Property damage charges will result from the report. A court date will be set later.

ACCIDENTS

Hopkinsville woman injured in wreck

Hopkinsville Police responded to a wreck Thursday morning involving a vehicle at the intersection of N. 11th and W. 2nd Street.

According to the police report, the Hopkinsville woman, who was driving a four-door vehicle, struck another Hopkinsville woman, driving a two-door vehicle, as she turned left into the street. She ran a stop sign and was cited for operating an uninsured motor vehicle, a traffic violation, and a citation for failing to yield.

STRAWMAN NEWS

Seven years earlier, while driving with a friend, she decided to take a break and eat some food. They stopped at a convenient store and she purchased a sandwich and some snacks. While she was eating, she noticed a group of children playing nearby.

The next day, she was driving home and saw the same group of children. She pulled over to the side of the road and went inside the store to buy them some ice cream. The children were very grateful and thanked her for her kindness.

Three years later, she was driving home from work and saw the same children again. She stopped and bought them some more ice cream and some toys. The children were overjoyed and thanked her again.

Last year, she saw the children for the fifth time. She bought them a new bicycle and some school supplies. The children were very happy and thanked her again.

The children have become like family to her and she looks forward to seeing them every year. She considers herself the children's “second mother” and is proud to have helped them.

She continues to drive around the neighborhood and look for the children to give them more presents. She feels a deep connection to them and enjoys the joy they bring to her life.

CRIME

Local woman threatened in front of child, report states

FROM NEW ERA STAFF REPORTS

Lynia Torian, 25, of Hopkinsville, was stopped Wednesday afternoon by Maj. James Smith while she was stopped in her vehicle in a parking lot at the intersection of South South East Second streets when a woman stopped her vehicle and began arguing with her.

According to a Hopkinsville police report, the suspect told Smith that she was going to kill her daughter, then go to her trunk and grab a small-caliber gun to kill her, then went to her trunk and retrieved a small-caliber handgun. The suspect admitted she was going to go to her daughter's home to kill her in front of her child.

The suspect was arrested on the scene. Property damage charges will result from the report. A court date will be set later.

ACCIDENTS

Hopkinsville woman injured in wreck

Hopkinsville Police responded to a wreck Thursday morning involving a vehicle at the intersection of N. 11th and W. 2nd Street.

According to the police report, the Hopkinsville woman, who was driving a four-door vehicle, struck another Hopkinsville woman, driving a two-door vehicle, as she turned left into the street. She ran a stop sign and was cited for operating an uninsured motor vehicle, a traffic violation, and a citation for failing to yield.

STRAWMAN NEWS

Seven years earlier, while driving with a friend, she decided to take a break and eat some food. They stopped at a convenient store and she purchased a sandwich and some snacks. While she was eating, she noticed a group of children playing nearby.

The next day, she was driving home and saw the same group of children. She pulled over to the side of the road and went inside the store to buy them some ice cream. The children were very grateful and thanked her for her kindness.

Three years later, she was driving home from work and saw the same children again. She stopped and bought them some more ice cream and some toys. The children were overjoyed and thanked her again.

Last year, she saw the children for the fifth time. She bought them a new bicycle and some school supplies. The children were very happy and thanked her again.

The children have become like family to her and she looks forward to seeing them every year. She considers herself the children's “second mother” and is proud to have helped them.

She continues to drive around the neighborhood and look for the children to give them more presents. She feels a deep connection to them and enjoys the joy they bring to her life.

CRIME

Local woman threatened in front of child, report states

FROM NEW ERA STAFF REPORTS

Lynia Torian, 25, of Hopkinsville, was stopped Wednesday afternoon by Maj. James Smith while she was stopped in her vehicle in a parking lot at the intersection of South South East Second streets when a woman stopped her vehicle and began arguing with her.

According to a Hopkinsville police report, the suspect told Smith that she was going to kill her daughter, then go to her trunk and grab a small-caliber gun to kill her, then went to her trunk and retrieved a small-caliber handgun. The suspect admitted she was going to go to her daughter's home to kill her in front of her child.

The suspect was arrested on the scene. Property damage charges will result from the report. A court date will be set later.

ACCIDENTS

Hopkinsville woman injured in wreck

Hopkinsville Police responded to a wreck Thursday morning involving a vehicle at the intersection of N. 11th and W. 2nd Street.

According to the police report, the Hopkinsville woman, who was driving a four-door vehicle, struck another Hopkinsville woman, driving a two-door vehicle, as she turned left into the street. She ran a stop sign and was cited for operating an uninsured motor vehicle, a traffic violation, and a citation for failing to yield.