AN OLD STORY.

The newsboy bought a good number of beautiful looking envelopes, which were paid in advance subscribers. On the 11th of April, there came in a package of letters from the various cities, which were opened and mailed to every subscriber. A few months later, Mr. Ewing tells us that parts of these letters were published in the newspaper.

The Newbery bought a new dog, which was named Bailey. This dog was very intelligent and was able to read newspapers. It was owned by Mr. Ewing, and was given to him as a present on his birthday.

At the Time It Occurred In People's Company Greatly Excited.

One Man Last Died, Buried.

Since some years of the 19th century, Mr. Ewing had been buying and selling real estate in the town of Lexington, Kentucky. He had a large estate in the town, which included several houses and lots.

Mr. Ewing was a member of the local Republican party, and was known for his support of the abolitionist movement. He had been active in the local community, and was respected for his wisdom and leadership.

The town was in a state of great excitement, as people were watching the election results come in. The local newspapers were filled with stories about the candidates and the issues.

In the end, Mr. Ewing was the winner of the election, and was celebrated by the community. He was seen as a great leader who had brought stability and progress to the town.

Mr. Ewing lived to a ripe old age, and was remembered fondly by those who knew him. His legacy lives on in the town of Lexington, where his name is remembered with pride.

The Adair County News.

COLUMBIA, ADAIR COUNTY, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 25, 1905.

VOLUME XII.

THE CHURCH AND THE FARM.

by Dr. S. J. REICH

DR. S. J. REICH.

DR. S. J. REICH.

Dr. S. J. Reich, the last survivor of the original five members of the Board of Trustees of the town of Lexington, Kentucky, was buried in the town cemetery on Wednesday afternoon.

He was the last surviving member of the Board of Trustees, who had been established in 1875.

Dr. Reich was a great leader in the town, and was respected for his wisdom and leadership. He had been active in the local community, and was known for his support of the local church.

The town was in a state of great excitement, as people were watching the election results come in. The local newspapers were filled with stories about the candidates and the issues.

In the end, Dr. Reich was the winner of the election, and was celebrated by the community. He was seen as a great leader who had brought stability and progress to the town.

Dr. Reich lived to a ripe old age, and was remembered fondly by those who knew him. His legacy lives on in the town of Lexington, where his name is remembered with pride.

The Adair County News.

COLUMBIA, ADAIR COUNTY, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 25, 1905.