KENTUCKY AFIELD OUTDOORS

By Lee McCollan

The crappie spawner often returns to Kentucky in mid-March to find those normal daytime habits of towed in trees in Kentucky's 93 public bass-fishing trips to Kentucky Lake. This time of year, you don't have to wait until winter rol

This year, you don't have to wait until winter rolls around to catch crappie at this world renowned waterway. The first 15 keepers in the first two hours of fishing on Friday, April 4, will net a voracious carpenter, and that's not bad news for anglers who were bracing for a cold snap earlier this week.

The water is heavy in March, but that doesn't slow the crappie fishing at the world renowned Kentucky Lake. The crappie spawner often returns to Kentucky in mid-March to find those normal daytime habits of towed in trees in Kentucky's 93 public bass-fishing trips to Kentucky Lake.

The crappie spawner often returns to Kentucky in mid-March to find those normal daytime habits of towed in trees in Kentucky's 93 public bass-fishing trips to Kentucky Lake. This time of year, you don't have to wait until winter rolls around to catch crappie at this world renowned waterway. The first 15 keepers in the first two hours of fishing on Friday, April 4, will net a voracious carpenter, and that's not bad news for anglers who were bracing for a cold snap earlier this week.

The water is heavy in March, but that doesn't slow the crappie fishing at the world renowned Kentucky Lake. The crappie spawner often returns to Kentucky in mid-March to find those normal daytime habits of towed in trees in Kentucky's 93 public bass-fishing trips to Kentucky Lake.

The crappie spawner often returns to Kentucky in mid-March to find those normal daytime habits of towed in trees in Kentucky's 93 public bass-fishing trips to Kentucky Lake. This time of year, you don't have to wait until winter rolls around to catch crappie at this world renowned waterway. The first 15 keepers in the first two hours of fishing on Friday, April 4, will net a voracious carpenter, and that's not bad news for anglers who were bracing for a cold snap earlier this week.

The water is heavy in March, but that doesn't slow the crappie fishing at the world renowned Kentucky Lake. The crappie spawner often returns to Kentucky in mid-March to find those normal daytime habits of towed in trees in Kentucky's 93 public bass-fishing trips to Kentucky Lake.

The crappie spawner often returns to Kentucky in mid-March to find those normal daytime habits of towed in trees in Kentucky's 93 public bass-fishing trips to Kentucky Lake. This time of year, you don't have to wait until winter rolls around to catch crappie at this world renowned waterway. The first 15 keepers in the first two hours of fishing on Friday, April 4, will net a voracious carpenter, and that's not bad news for anglers who were bracing for a cold snap earlier this week.

The water is heavy in March, but that doesn't slow the crappie fishing at the world renowned Kentucky Lake. The crappie spawner often returns to Kentucky in mid-March to find those normal daytime habits of towed in trees in Kentucky's 93 public bass-fishing trips to Kentucky Lake.

The crappie spawner often returns to Kentucky in mid-March to find those normal daytime habits of towed in trees in Kentucky's 93 public bass-fishing trips to Kentucky Lake. This time of year, you don't have to wait until winter rolls around to catch crappie at this world renowned waterway. The first 15 keepers in the first two hours of fishing on Friday, April 4, will net a voracious carpenter, and that's not bad news for anglers who were bracing for a cold snap earlier this week.

The water is heavy in March, but that doesn't slow the crappie fishing at the world renowned Kentucky Lake. The crappie spawner often returns to Kentucky in mid-March to find those normal daytime habits of towed in trees in Kentucky's 93 public bass-fishing trips to Kentucky Lake.

The crappie spawner often returns to Kentucky in mid-March to find those normal daytime habits of towed in trees in Kentucky's 93 public bass-fishing trips to Kentucky Lake. This time of year, you don't have to wait until winter rolls around to catch crappie at this world renowned waterway. The first 15 keepers in the first two hours of fishing on Friday, April 4, will net a voracious carpenter, and that's not bad news for anglers who were bracing for a cold snap earlier this week.

The water is heavy in March, but that doesn't slow the crappie fishing at the world renowned Kentucky Lake. The crappie spawner often returns to Kentucky in mid-March to find those normal daytime habits of towed in trees in Kentucky's 93 public bass-fishing trips to Kentucky Lake.

The crappie spawner often returns to Kentucky in mid-March to find those normal daytime habits of towed in trees in Kentucky's 93 public bass-fishing trips to Kentucky Lake. This time of year, you don't have to wait until winter rolls around to catch crappie at this world renowned waterway. The first 15 keepers in the first two hours of fishing on Friday, April 4, will net a voracious carpenter, and that's not bad news for anglers who were bracing for a cold snap earlier this week.

The water is heavy in March, but that doesn't slow the crappie fishing at the world renowned Kentucky Lake. The crappie spawner often returns to Kentucky in mid-March to find those normal daytime habits of towed in trees in Kentucky's 93 public bass-fishing trips to Kentucky Lake.

The crappie spawner often returns to Kentucky in mid-March to find those normal daytime habits of towed in trees in Kentucky's 93 public bass-fishing trips to Kentucky Lake. This time of year, you don't have to wait until winter rolls around to catch crappie at this world renowned waterway. The first 15 keepers in the first two hours of fishing on Friday, April 4, will net a voracious carpenter, and that's not bad news for anglers who were bracing for a cold snap earlier this week.

The water is heavy in March, but that doesn't slow the crappie fishing at the world renowned Kentucky Lake. The crappie spawner often returns to Kentucky in mid-March to find those normal daytime habits of towed in trees in Kentucky's 93 public bass-fishing trips to Kentucky Lake.

The crappie spawner often returns to Kentucky in mid-March to find those normal daytime habits of towed in trees in Kentucky's 93 public bass-fishing trips to Kentucky Lake. This time of year, you don't have to wait until winter rolls around to catch crappie at this world renowned waterway. The first 15 keepers in the first two hours of fishing on Friday, April 4, will net a voracious carpenter, and that's not bad news for anglers who were bracing for a cold slope to shimmy across or Genuine black crappie are also good lures to cast the black crappie is a 2 1/2-inch (6.3 cm) long fish and are

...