

Bethlehem teams take national prizes

The Mine Rescue Teams of Bethlehem Mines Corporation, Jenkins, won top honors at the 1959 National First-Aid and Mine Rescue Contest held in Buffalo, N. Y., on Oct. 5, 6, and 7.

The Mine Rescue Team from Mine No. 22, captained by Douglas Damron, won the National Championship with the team from Mine No. 21, captained by Kelly DeSimone, taking second place. The combination First-Aid-Mine Rescue Team, captained by Warrnie Flint, Jr., won the National Championship for combination teams.

Additional honors were theirs as a result of their wins at the national contest. The Mine Rescue Team from Mine No. 22 was declared Kentucky State Champions and the one from Mine No. 21 runner-up. The combination team from Mine No. 21 was declared not only State Combination Team Chamions but State First Aid Champions as well since they placed first in standing with the other Kentucky teams competing.

The 22 National Mine Rescue Championship Team was composed of Douglas Damron, captain; William Sergeant, James Salyers, Truman Conley, Wilmer Donahue, Albert Sanders and Raymond Litts. The runner-up Mine Rescue Team from Mine No. 21 included Kelly DeSimone, captain; Eugene Brown, Paul Naramore, Warren Yonts, David Walker and Joe Walker. The combination team National Champions was captained by Warrnie Flint, Jr., with team members John Huffman, James Zideroff, Ray Vinson, Bill Collins, Lenville Jones, and Clyde Vaggard.

Fifty-two teams from eight states took part in the three days of competition during the Mine Rescue Contest. This contest is sponsored by the United States Bureau of Mines and the Joseph A. Holmes Safety Association in cooperation with late mine inspection agencies, management and labor organizations, and other safety-minded groups.

Accident fatal

A hunting accident proved fatal Oct. 9 to Louie Combs, 12-year-old son of Estill and Mary Pallidge Combs of Carcassonne.

Coroner Virginia Craft said the youth's shotgun apparently slipped and discharged as he was crossing a log while hunting in the woods near his home.

Funeral services were held Monday at Jent Mountain Cemetery at Carcassonne.

Survivors besides the parents are five brothers and three sisters.

Craft Funeral Home had charge of arrangements.

Woman's Club hears schools talk

The Jenkins Woman's Civic Club had its regular monthly meeting in the library Tuesday, Oct. 6.

The program chairman was Mrs. R. W. Storey, chairman of Education. For entertainment, Mrs. Storey presented her daughter, Martha Ann, accompanied by Rebecca Brown at the piano.

Mrs. Storey presented a panel discussion of the Legislative program for education based on recommendations of citizens' committees. Mr. Jack Pickel, superintendent of schools, introduced the panel and gave a brief discussion of the Legislative program the KEA has set up.

The panel consisted of Mrs. Kersey, restaurant manager, Whitesburg; Mr. Johnson, teacher, Virgie; Mrs. Curry, teacher, Jenkins; Mr. Webb, teacher, Fleming-Neon; Miss Back, teacher, Whitesburg, and Mr. Morgan, teacher, Pikeville.

The following points were discussed by the panel: teachers' salaries (KEA believes should be set up an average salary of $4,775 for qualified degree teachers), free textbooks, long school term, special education, transportation, current expenses, higher education, vocational education, capital outlay, school building authority and teacher retirement.

The discussion was very enlightening and was well worth anyone's time. We should all write to our congressmen before January what we believe about each of these points.

The first annual Midget Bowl was staged at the Jenkins Ball Park Saturday and a fine game saw the visiting Pound team come out ahead 6-0. The Jenkins team had a touchdown called back, so you see what a good ball game it was.

A parade to the field preceded the game. Queen candidates rode convertibles behind the band and team.

Miss Nedra Hawks was selected queen by four women judges. The runnerup was Miss Brenda Buchovich. Attendants were Judy Griffin, and Jill Sutfan.

We realized about $250 which will pay for half the equipment purchased. We will probably have another fund raising project within the next two weeks.

Lexington residents visit relatives

By Mrs. Bettie Hensley

Mr. and Mrs. Claude Hensley of Lexington visited last weekend with Mr. Hensley's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Garrett Hensley of Isom. Mrs. Hensley returned home Sunday after a two-week visit with her parents Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Bentley of McRoberts.

Mr. and Mrs. Hensley are the proud parents of a six pound boy, born Sept. 16. The name chosen for him is Claude Anthony.

Mrs. Emily Collins is very ill at her home this week.

Paul Collins and sister, Mrs. Shirley Burns, visited their parents, Mr. and Mrs. James F. Collins over the weekend. Little Ronnie Keith returned to Covington with them.

Mr. and Mrs. Finley Hensley were visiting their parents last weekend.

Rita Faye Shepherd of Lexington visited Lida Banks last weekend.

Dicie Combs of Colson stayed Sunday night with her mother, Emily Collins.

Herchel Hensley visited three days last week in Lexington with his brothers.

We were so sorry to learn of the death of Raymond Hensley. We offer our deepest sympathy to the family, relatives, and friends.

Miss Ruby Morton is visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Astor Morton in Indianapolis, Ind.

Mrs. Sallie Brown has dinner guests

By Lovell Caudill

Another good dinner at Sallie Brown last Wednesday. Several gathered in to spend the day with her, also meet a sales lady. We had a wonderful visit also heard plans for a big supper to be given at Hazard later this month. This event is being carefully considered by Maggie Brown and Jan Mitchell who wish so much to get in on the free supper by presenting a $50 order, (sounds like a trip to Washington for these gals).

Another thing we women are really proud of here at Bluefield is that Mildred Rogers made her driver's test last week and received her license. We all look up to her now, for sure.

Our deepest sympathy goes out to the family and friends, also two sisters and six brothers of Aunt Naneye Back, who died last Thursday at Irvine, Ky. She had been in poor health for quite a while, yet her death came suddenly. Several of the relatives of Letcher attended the funeral among them were Mr. and Mrs. Dexter Rogers, Agnan Back, Janis Mitchell and Lovell Caudill.

Another shock to us here was to hear that Herman Campbell's house burned down last Monday. Herman's wife is in the hospital in poor health. We sure hope how soon she feels better. Their only son is in service.

Mrs. Ray Collins spent Monday with Aunt Sallie, also visited and had dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Ira Dixon, good to find Aunt Phoebe feeling some better, anyway she could go to the table for dinner.

They made it, yes, Jimmie Mitchell and Phyllis Cole completed their long awaited wedding last Saturday. They were happily married at Blackey. We hope they continue to be happy all through life.

Miss Clara Shaw visits in Lexington

Miss Clara Shaw visited her nieces, Mrs. Paul Smith and Miss Rhea Cannon in Lexington this past weekend and was guest of the Rafinesque Garden Club Saturday at Transylvania College Little Theater. The special feature of the club was the presentation of Mrs. Ruth Emerson Kistner, a nationally known flower arranger, who featured Thanksgiving and holiday arrangements. Mrs. Joe Morris, formerly of Jenkins, is the president of the club.
