

Classification and arrangement of books in a library

Some people think the Librarian should know every thing in every book in the library.

Some people ^{actually} think some Librarians know every thing in every book in the library.

It is needless to say that both of these opinions ^{seem to be} are erroneous.

A patron's remark.
"I wish I could carry all that in my head"

The business of the Librarian is not to know every thing in all the books in the library.

But to know what's in the library, and how to find it.
