The population of Iowa is 2,224,771, a decrease of 7,082 under the population of 1900.

At Elizabeth, N. J., E. P. French killed his two young daughters and attempted to commit suicide.

An official decree was issued at Peking announcing that an imperial parliament, the first in the history of China, would be convoked in 1913.

Mrs. Minnie Leo Streight was convicted in Waco, Tex., yesterday of the murder of her husband, T. E. Streight, a newspaperman, and sentenced to life imprisonment.

J. H. Jessie, proprietor of the Tip Top Hotel at Roanoke, Va., was held to the grand jury for the murder of David Franklin Marshall, a guest, who was killed in his room on the night of October 11.

The Supreme Court of the United States was fitted up with complete paraphernalia for the manufacture of rubber-tired carriage wheels, the machinery to be used in settling an alleged patent infringement case.

At Bowling Green, Hermon Lewis, aged 14, was caught soaping the street railroad track Halloween and placed on the front end of the car, but jumped off while the car was moving and was crushed to death under the wheels. The boy was a son of J. C. Lewis.

State Senator J. J. Watkins died at Sturgis, after suffering for three weeks with gastritis and dilation of the heart. Senator Watkins was one of the most prominent members of the State Senate and led the fight for the county unit bill at several sessions of the Legislature.

Judge Simeon E. Baldwin, Democratic nominee for Governor of Connecticut, announced that he would bring suit against Col. Roosevelt on account of statements reported to have been made in a speech in New Hampshire relative to Judge Baldwin's attitude on labor legislation.

Jackson, Ky., Nov. 4.—Asbury Spicer was convicted in the Breathitt Circuit Court here today for the killing of his nephew, Asbury Fugate, and sentenced to the penitentiary for life. The killing occurred last June.

Frankfort, Ky., Nov. 3.—High schools have been established, under the new law, which requires that a high school be established in each county in the State, in all but fifteen counties, and steps will be taken at once by the Department of Education to have these counties convert some schools that they now have into a high school.

The counties which have not established high schools according to law to date are as follows:

Floyd, Garrard, Jackson, Knox, Lee, Leslie, Owsley, Rowan, Russell, Taylor, Trigg, Wayne.

The dying request of Rev. E. O. Hanks, a prominent minister of Pulaski county, was that he be buried standing up. He has been ill six weeks of typhoid fever. His relatives attempted to persuade him to agree to the regular method of burial when it was realized that death was near at hand.

However, he held out that his grave be dug after the fashion of a post hole and in the presence of a great concourse of sorrowing friends his request was complied with. He declared that on judgment day he desired to be standing upright as he had "always stood for what was right and just."

Sturgis, Ky., Nov. 5.—The death of State Senator John Jefferson Watkins came unexpectedly at ten o'clock this afternoon after an illness of several weeks' duration.

Not until Friday was the critical stage noticeable, when a great and sudden change came over Mr. Watkins, and though conscious, he began to sink rapidly, but seemed aware of the impending end, even mentioning that he did not fear death save the struggle in the passing. In the final hours he suffered intense pain, but bravely endured it without a murmur. The immediate cause of his death is given out by his brother, Dr. J. A. Watkins, as gastritis and dilation of the heart. He was single and about 48 years of age.

London, Ky., Nov. 3.—The Catching block, covering an entire square and in which the principal business of the city was transacted, was destroyed by fire last night, the fire starting shortly before midnight in the rear of S. Sallwansky's store from an unknown cause.

The block destroyed was one solid three-story brick structure covering a whole square just in front of the courthouse, and was the largest and finest business block and office building in the State east of Lexington.

London has had many costly fires in recent years, but this is the greatest loss ever sustained by fire in its history.

The building and contents were worth more than $100,000. The loss on building alone is fairly covered by insurance, but the greatest loss is to the scores of people occupying the building, many of whom had no insurance.

This is the worst blow London has ever received. Practically all business is at a standstill.

Danville, Ky., Nov. 4.—Announcement of the appointment of Col. E. W. Lillard, of Danville, as private secretary to United States Senator W. O. Bradley was made this afternoon. With his family Col. Lillard will move to Washington City the latter part of this month. Senator Bradley owes his election to the vote of Col. Lillard in the Kentucky General Assembly, and has always regarded himself under a debt of gratitude to Lillard.

Col. Lillard was elected to the Legislature from this county as a Democrat. However, an enmity between the Democratic nominee for Senator and himself had existed, and when it came to the election of United States Senator, Lillard cast his vote for Bradley.

Since retiring as a member of the Legislature, Col. Lillard has lived upon his farm, in the south edge of Iowa. He has been engaged in raising chickens on a big scale, having installed a $10,000 brooder incubator and plant. Thousands of chickens are hatched every three weeks. The plant will likely be discontinued during Col. Lillard's residence in Washington. For a long while it was understood that Col. Lillard would be appointed postmaster of Danville, but it is understood that he did not care for the job.

Danville, Ky., Nov. 2.—Early in 1911, the new high bridge which is to span the Kentucky river on the Queen and Crescent Route will have been completed. It will be the highest bridge spanning a navigable stream on the American continent and is to be the most massive structure of its length and breadth known to the civilized world and will have a sustaining capacity of 200 tons. In the erection of this wonderful span more than two million two hundred thousand rivets and 14,000,000 pounds of tested steel are required. Almost two years were spent in manufacturing the great steel sections that are being combined to produce this marvelous product of American skill and genius.

The old bridge which has attracted sightseers of every nation is constructed of iron in weight one-fourth as massive as the steel of which the new bridge is being made. On account of the superior material of the new structure it will have about five times the sustaining power of the old one.

From the top of the rails of the new bridge to the water in the river below, the distance is 315 feet. It will require 140,000 pounds of steel rails and 2,900 ties to build the double track across the bridge which is 1,223 feet in length. Thousands of people are now being attracted to the scene to witness the building of a structure the like of which exists nowhere else on the American continent, and it is fitting that this marvelous handiwork of man should have as its setting a landscape that is unrivaled in natural beauty and charm.

Chips of Wisdom. Every farm should own a good farmer.

This world is God's workshop for making men in.

A man who does not love praise is not a full man.

A man without self-restraint is like a barrel without hoops and tumbles to pieces.

The pursuit of ignoble pleasure is the degradation of true happiness.

The examples set by the great and good do not die; they continue to live and speak to all the generations that succeed him.

It is idleness that is the curse of man—not labor.

Sloth never climbed a hill nor overcame a difficulty that it could avoid.

Even leisure cannot be enjoyed unless it is won by effort. If it has not been earned by work the price has not been paid for it.

Idleness eats the heart out of men, and consumes them as rust does iron.

Power belongs only to the workers; the idle are always powerless.

It is the laborious, painstaking men who are the rulers of the world.

Perseverance is the best school for manly virtue.

The greatest misfortune of all is not to be able to bear misfortune.

Method is the very hinge to business, and there is no method without punctuality.

Idle moments are the openings through which the tempter finds ready entrance with the citadels of the soul.

If a man be gracious to strangers, it shows that he is a citizen of the world, and that his heart is not island cut off from other lands, but a continent that joins them.

Nothing is more penuriousness nothing more anxious than carelessness, and every duty which is hidden to wait returns with seven fresh duties at its back.

Today is a king in disguise. Today always looks mean to the thoughtless, in the face of uniform experience that all good and great and happy actions are made up precisely of these blank todays.

Beautiful Thoughts.

The Countess Irma is one of the characters in a German novel entitled "On the Heights." In her journal are found the following beautifully expressed sentiments:

"Modern culture cannot take the place of religion; religion makes all men equal, culture unequal. There must however, some day, be a system of culture which will make all men equal; then only will it be the right or the true. We are only yet at the beginning."

"So long as we can say 'father,' or 'mother,' there is a love on the earth which bears one up in its on-ly when the parents are dead that that we are set down on the hard ground."

"We only see all the good nests when the trees are bare, and there is nothing more in them."

"Every man, wherever, he may be, is standing, unforbidden, on a height, from which he does not see the signs of mortality. If one always saw them there would be no more work in the world—no more song."

"The most mysterious, dreamy thoughts are like a bird on a twig; he sings, but if he sees an eye watching him he flies away."

"A man who allows himself to alter his sentiments, and permits the hunger of his character to be changed, is conquered by the world, and exists no longer as himself."

Hints for Wives.

Perchance you think that your husband's disposition is much changed; that he is no longer the sweet-tempered, ardent lover he used to be. This may be a mistake. Consider his struggle with the world—his everlasting race with the busy competition of trade. What is it that makes him so eager in the pursuit of gain—so energetic by day, so sleepless by night—but his love of home, wife and children, a dread that their respectability, according to the light in which he has conceived it, may be encroached upon by the strife of existence. This is the true secret of that silent care which preys upon the hearts of many men; and true it is, that when love is least apparent, it is nevertheless the active principle which animates the heart, though fears and disappointments make up a cloud which obscures the warmer element. As above the clouds there is a glorious sunshine while below are showers and gloom, so with the conduct of man—behind the gloom of anxiety there is a bright fountain of high and noble feeling. Thinking of this in those moments when clouds seem to lower upon your domestic peace and by tempering your conduct accordingly, the gloom will soon pass away and warmth and brightness take its place.

The Deadly Cold Bed.

If trustworthy statistics could be had of the number of persons who die every year or become permanently diseased, from sleeping in damp or cold beds they would probably be astonishing and appalling. It is a peril that constantly besets traveling men, and if they are wise they will invariably insist on having their beds aired and dried, even at the risk of causing much trouble to their landlords. But, it is a peril that resides also in the home, and the cold "spare room" has slain its thousands of helpless guests, and will go on with its slaughter till people learn wisdom. Not only the guest, but the family often suffer the penalty of sleeping in cold rooms and chilling their bodies at a time when they need all their bodily heat, by getting between cold sheets. Even in warm summer weather a cold damp bed will get in its deadly work. It is a needless peril, and the neglect to provide dry rooms and beds has in it the elements of murder and suicide.
