Fifteen authors plan to take part in Writers Day at Old Mulkey Saturday, April 14

Two more authors have been added to the group of writers who plan to take part in the Writers Day Celebration at Old Mulkey this Saturday afternoon, April 14.

Annabelle Barlow, author of Michelle Hinton, both of Bowling Green, will be among other authors who will be on hand to sign copies of their work that day, to talk about their work.

Featured author at the April 14th event will be the popular Fort Macon Lawman Maureen Monroe, who will speak to those attending at 2 p.m.

The other participating writers for that day are John Brown, Wilkinson, Russellville; David Fludd, Lafay-ette, Tenn.; N. Jo Marley, Burkesville; Connie Godbe, Glasgow.

More than 60 people attend- ed the recent local forum about the issue of smoke-free workplaces included (above, from left) Valerie Hudson, director of Education; Kathy Slaughter • Bethsheba Simpson • Gail Spear • Blanche Trimble • Joe Wilder

Fifty-six professionals in the local mental health system, including therapists and counselors, are part of the group of professionals who are preparing to help people who may have an addiction to drugs or alcohol.

A professional magician won Best Overall Talent in the Nashville Talent Search last fall. He is now scheduled to perform a show during April in Tompkinsville. His name is David Fludd, and he will be the featured performer at the 2012 PRIDE Spring Cleanup.

The Tompkinsville Spring Cleanup will be held Friday, April 13, and Saturday, April 14. Clean-up efforts are un- derway throughout Monroe County this month as volunteers work to clean up along local streets and highways. Monroe County residents may dispose of large items, free of charge, throughout the month of April. Drop the items off at the County Garage on Fourth Street in Tompkinsville.

In addition to the PRIDE Spring Clean-up, Monroe County residents are planning Heavy Garbage Pickup for the Spring Clean-up. Contact Hackensaw and Sheila Rush at 427-5841 or rushshackensaw@gmail.com.

More than 60 people attend- ed the recent local forum about the issue of smoke-free workplaces included (above, from left) Valerie Hudson, director of Education; Kathy Slaughter • Bethsheba Simpson • Gail Spear • Blanche Trimble • Joe Wilder

The two long-time spe- cialists in the field of child safety have been scientifically proven that they can help reduce serious injuries and death in non-smokers as well as in smokers who are not treated for their problems. And in this health problems resulting from exposure to secondhand smoke.

More than 4600 people have signed up for the Tompkinsville News this year, and a number of those who have signed up have expressed an interest in getting more information about the Tompkinsville News.

In addition to the PRIDE Spring Clean-up, Monroe County residents are planning Heavy Garbage Pickup for the Spring Clean-up. Contact Hackensaw and Sheila Rush at 427-5841 or rushshackensaw@gmail.com.

Two Tompkinsville resi- dents were injured last Tues- day night, March 27, when the motorcycle they were riding collided with a deer in rural part of Monroe County.

The two long-time spe- cialists in the field of child safety have been scientifically proven that they can help reduce serious injuries and death in non-smokers as well as in smokers who are not treated for their problems. And in this health problems resulting from exposure to secondhand smoke.

The two long-time spe- cialists in the field of child safety have been scientifically proven that they can help reduce serious injuries and death in non-smokers as well as in smokers who are not treated for their problems. And in this health problems resulting from exposure to secondhand smoke.

More than 60 people attend- ed the recent local forum about the issue of smoke-free workplaces included (above, from left) Valerie Hudson, director of Education; Kathy Slaughter • Bethsheba Simpson • Gail Spear • Blanche Trimble • Joe Wilder

Fifteen authors plan to take part in Writers Day at Old Mulkey Saturday, April 14

Two more authors have been added to the group of writers who plan to take part in the Writers Day Celebration at Old Mulkey this Saturday afternoon, April 14.

Annabelle Barlow, author of Michelle Hinton, both of Bowling Green, will be among other authors who will be on hand to sign copies of their work that day, to talk about their work.

Featured author at the April 14th event will be the popular Fort Macon Lawman Maureen Monroe, who will speak to those attending at 2 p.m.

The other participating writers for that day are John Brown, Wilkinson, Russellville; David Fludd, Lafay-ette, Tenn.; N. Jo Marley, Burkesville; Connie Godbe, Glasgow.

More than 60 people attend- ed the recent local forum about the issue of smoke-free workplaces included (above, from left) Valerie Hudson, director of Education; Kathy Slaughter • Bethsheba Simpson • Gail Spear • Blanche Trimble • Joe Wilder

Fifteen authors plan to take part in Writers Day at Old Mulkey Saturday, April 14

Two more authors have been added to the group of writers who plan to take part in the Writers Day Celebration at Old Mulkey this Saturday afternoon, April 14.

Annabelle Barlow, author of Michelle Hinton, both of Bowling Green, will be among other authors who will be on hand to sign copies of their work that day, to talk about their work.

Featured author at the April 14th event will be the popular Fort Macon Lawman Maureen Monroe, who will speak to those attending at 2 p.m.

The other participating writers for that day are John Brown, Wilkinson, Russellville; David Fludd, Lafay-ette, Tenn.; N. Jo Marley, Burkesville; Connie Godbe, Glasgow.

More than 60 people attend- ed the recent local forum about the issue of smoke-free workplaces included (above, from left) Valerie Hudson, director of Education; Kathy Slaughter • Bethsheba Simpson • Gail Spear • Blanche Trimble • Joe Wilder

Two more authors have been added to the group of writers who plan to take part in the Writers Day Celebration at Old Mulkey this Saturday afternoon, April 14.

Annabelle Barlow, author of Michelle Hinton, both of Bowling Green, will be among other authors who will be on hand to sign copies of their work that day, to talk about their work.

Featured author at the April 14th event will be the popular Fort Macon Lawman Maureen Monroe, who will speak to those attending at 2 p.m.

The other participating writers for that day are John Brown, Wilkinson, Russellville; David Fludd, Lafay-ette, Tenn.; N. Jo Marley, Burkesville; Connie Godbe, Glasgow.

More than 60 people attend- ed the recent local forum about the issue of smoke-free workplaces included (above, from left) Valerie Hudson, director of Education; Kathy Slaughter • Bethsheba Simpson • Gail Spear • Blanche Trimble • Joe Wilder

Two more authors have been added to the group of writers who plan to take part in the Writers Day Celebration at Old Mulkey this Saturday afternoon, April 14.

Annabelle Barlow, author of Michelle Hinton, both of Bowling Green, will be among other authors who will be on hand to sign copies of their work that day, to talk about their work.

Featured author at the April 14th event will be the popular Fort Macon Lawman Maureen Monroe, who will speak to those attending at 2 p.m.

The other participating writers for that day are John Brown, Wilkinson, Russellville; David Fludd, Lafay-ette, Tenn.; N. Jo Marley, Burkesville; Connie Godbe, Glasgow.

More than 60 people attend- ed the recent local forum about the issue of smoke-free workplaces included (above, from left) Valerie Hudson, director of Education; Kathy Slaughter • Bethsheba Simpson • Gail Spear • Blanche Trimble • Joe Wilder

Two more authors have been added to the group of writers who plan to take part in the Writers Day Celebration at Old Mulkey this Saturday afternoon, April 14.

Annabelle Barlow, author of Michelle Hinton, both of Bowling Green, will be among other authors who will be on hand to sign copies of their work that day, to talk about their work.

Featured author at the April 14th event will be the popular Fort Macon Lawman Maureen Monroe, who will speak to those attending at 2 p.m.

The other participating writers for that day are John Brown, Wilkinson, Russellville; David Fludd, Lafay-ette, Tenn.; N. Jo Marley, Burkesville; Connie Godbe, Glasgow.

More than 60 people attend- ed the recent local forum about the issue of smoke-free workplaces included (above, from left) Valerie Hudson, director of Education; Kathy Slaughter • Bethsheba Simpson • Gail Spear • Blanche Trimble • Joe Wilder

Two more authors have been added to the group of writers who plan to take part in the Writers Day Celebration at Old Mulkey this Saturday afternoon, April 14.

Annabelle Barlow, author of Michelle Hinton, both of Bowling Green, will be among other authors who will be on hand to sign copies of their work that day, to talk about their work.

Featured author at the April 14th event will be the popular Fort Macon Lawman Maureen Monroe, who will speak to those attending at 2 p.m.

The other participating writers for that day are John Brown, Wilkinson, Russellville; David Fludd, Lafay-ette, Tenn.; N. Jo Marley, Burkesville; Connie Godbe, Glasgow.

More than 60 people attend- ed the recent local forum about the issue of smoke-free workplaces included (above, from left) Valerie Hudson, director of Education; Kathy Slaughter • Bethsheba Simpson • Gail Spear • Blanche Trimble • Joe Wilder

Two more authors have been added to the group of writers who plan to take part in the Writers Day Celebration at Old Mulkey this Saturday afternoon, April 14.

Annabelle Barlow, author of Michelle Hinton, both of Bowling Green, will be among other authors who will be on hand to sign copies of their work that day, to talk about their work.

Featured author at the April 14th event will be the popular Fort Macon Lawman Maureen Monroe, who will speak to those attending at 2 p.m.

The other participating writers for that day are John Brown, Wilkinson, Russellville; David Fludd, Lafay-ette, Tenn.; N. Jo Marley, Burkesville; Connie Godbe, Glasgow.

More than 60 people attend- ed the recent local forum about the issue of smoke-free workplaces included (above, from left) Valerie Hudson, director of Education; Kathy Slaughter • Bethsheba Simpson • Gail Spear • Blanche Trimble • Joe Wilder

Two more authors have been added to the group of writers who plan to take part in the Writers Day Celebration at Old Mulkey this Saturday afternoon, April 14.

Annabelle Barlow, author of Michelle Hinton, both of Bowling Green, will be among other authors who will be on hand to sign copies of their work that day, to talk about their work.

Featured author at the April 14th event will be the popular Fort Macon Lawman Maureen Monroe, who will speak to those attending at 2 p.m.

The other participating writers for that day are John Brown, Wilkinson, Russellville; David Fludd, Lafay-ette, Tenn.; N. Jo Marley, Burkesville; Connie Godbe, Glasgow.