"I Remember Mama," the two-act comedy that enjoyed success of smash hit proportions on Broadway, will open in University High School auditorium at 8:30 Monday night as another feature presentation of Guignol, the University little theatre.

Arrangements for the play, transplanted since last week from the fire-ravaged Guignol theatre, were termed by play director Frank Fowler yesterday as being "complete." SGA Votes To Abolish Winter Quarter Election

Committee Set Up To Plan Changes In Constitution

Winter quarter Student Government Association assembly elections were abolished and a committee to study the SGA constitution and recommend any necessary changes was set up at the Assembly meeting Monday.

In the past, elections of representatives to the assembly have been held in the fall, winter, and spring quarters. Under the new system one-third of the legislature will be elected in the fall and the remaining two-thirds will be chosen in the spring. SGA president Howard Stephenson said.

A committee, composed of five members of the SGA judiciary committee, one administrative official appointed by UK president Herman L. Donovan and Dr. Howard Beers, SGA faculty advisor, was instructed to study the present SGA constitution with the idea of recommending action to the assembly on any needed changes in the document.

The assembly also voted to take further action in having the University to open a "campus night spot" in the grill and cafeteria. An attempt will be made by the group to clear up and aid enforcement of the fire prevention rules on the campus.

Budget Changes

A salary of $100 was voted for the editor of the freshman "K Welcome Book." Increased budget items of $250 to the Women's House Presidents' council, $70 to the Kentucky Union, and $150 to the Social Union were approved. The University's Chiefs

By James E. Abell

Since its founding, the University has had five titles and nine chief executives.

Before being officially designated the "University of Kentucky" in 1916, this school was known as Transylvania University, Kentucky University, Agricultural and Mechanical College of Kentucky and the State University of Kentucky.

The first president of the Agricultural and Mechanical College of Kentucky was John Augustus Williams in 1866. President Williams, who served almost 50 years, President Patterson saw the establishment of one student to a university with 75 professors and 100 graduates. President Patterson initiated the steps to obtain the University Extension Station, and Patterson Hall. He increased the annual income of the University from $9,000 to $150,000. Starting with one dwelling, he raised its property to include 17 buildings, a 52-acre campus and a 250 acre farm. Patterson resigned in 1900.

Following President Patterson was Professor James G. White who served as acting president until 1910. A Chief Justice of the Kentucky Appellate Court who became the next president of the State University of Kentucky was Henry Stites Barker. Judge Barker, as he was more commonly known, saw the enrollment of 721 students in 1910 doubled by 1916. He coordinated the University with the agricultural activities of the state and attended all farmer meetings possible. The Department of Journalism was established during President Barker's administration.

Paul P. Boyd, now Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, headed the institution from the resignation of President Barker to the arrival of President McVey.

Especially remembered for his zealous interest in student welfare, Frank LeRond McVey became the seventh head of the institution in 1917. During his administration, the University plant was increased by 39 buildings and there was a 4,500 student increase in enrollment. It was under Dr. McVey that the College of Commerce was established and the College of Education re-established.

From Dr. McVey's retirement to the present administration, Thomas Poe Cooper, Dean of the College of Agriculture and Home Economics, served as acting president.

Dr. Herman Lee Donovan, hailed as the "practical man" and a "getter," became the institution's eighth chief executive in 1941. One of President Donovan's first announcements contained hope for the building of a new field house. Plans now are for that structure to begin next year.

Among other plans outlined by President Donovan are the construction of a fine arts building, journalism building, and new residence halls to accommodate an anticipated enrollment of nearly 10,000 students by 1950.

Full Program Planned For Celebration Today

Tigert Speaks At Convocation

Dr. John J. Tigert, president of the University of Florida and former member of the University of Kentucky faculty, will deliver the address for the third annual observance of Founders Day at UK on Friday, February 21. He will speak on "The University of Kentucky Under Four Presidents," at 10 a. m. in Memorial Hall.

After two years as president of Kentucky Wesleyan college, Dr. Tigert in 1911 became professor of philosophy and psychology at the University, and from 1913 to 1916 also served as director of athletics and head coach at this institution.

At the University Dr. Tigert was perhaps best known for his work in commercial applications of psychology, especially in the field of advertising. In 1920 he was elected president of the Blue Grass Advertising club and became a member of the Associated Advertising clubs of the world.

Dr. Tigert's association with the University was interrupted by World War I in which he served with the American Expeditionary Forces for one year in Scotland, England, France, and Germany, first with the YMCA and later with the Army Educational Corps. He holds the commission of lieutenant colonel in the U. S. Reserve Corps. After the war he resumed his duties at UK, resigning in 1921 to become Commissioner of Education of the United States.

In 1928 Dr. Tigert assumed the presidency of the University of Florida. He has received numerous honorary degrees, including the LL.D. degree from the University of Kentucky. He is president of the Southeastern Conference.

A grandson of Holland N. McTyeire, founder of Vanderbilt university. Dr. Tigert was born in Nashville and was graduated with honors from Vanderbilt. At Vanderbilt he played football and basketball for three years and was elected captain of both teams. He was named an All-Southern halfback by Grantland Rice.

Dr. Tigert and members of teams he coached at the University of Kentucky will be guests of honor at a luncheon given by the Athletic Association at 1 noon Friday. No formal program has been planned for the luncheon.

Further information on the society can be obtained by contacting Morris Beebe, whose phone number is 3113.

Tigert, Philosophy Prof, Coached Football Team

Like beauty and brains football and philosophy aren't supposed to mix. Yet a philosophy professor coached the Kentucky football team to two seasons perhaps more successful than the recent one under Paul Bryant—and win and a scoreless tie over Tennessee, a win over Purdue, two ties with Sewanee.

Dr. John J. Tigert, now president of the University of Florida and speaker for today's Founders Day celebration, began his coaching career at the University by guiding the girls' basketball team in 1912.

Reserved Seats 50c!

Football games then were played on new Stoll field. The spectators sat in new Barker stadium, named for the president of the University. Reserved seats sold for fifty cents. Special trains took rooters to out-of-town games at Louisville and Cincinnati.

The Prohibition club of the University was welcoming a meeting of the International Prohibition Association, William Jennings Bryan was listed as one of the speakers for the meeting.

The State University of Kentucky was about to become the University of Kentucky, and The Idea was asking for suggestions for a better name for the student publication, when Tigert was made assistant to football coach Alpha Brumage in 1913. The Wildcats played Illinois that year and lost 21-0. Stars of the team included James Park (now commonwealth's attorney for Fayette county), William "Squirey" Tuttle, Gip Downing and Paul Hite.

A 33-0 win over a Tennessee freshman squad was the highlight of the year for the freshman team of 1914, coached by Tigert. Other victims of

Troupers Entertain At Half-Time Of Saturday's Game

Students who see the basketball game tomorrow night between Kentucky and Georgia Tech are in for an additional show. During the intermission period at half time, the UK Troupers have scheduled a ten-minute performance.

The show, first put on for UK students since the group reorganized, will feature a spring board act, and a double tumbling act. It will be a small portion of the 15 act show that will be presented late in April.

Noon Sweater Swing To Be Held Tuesday

A noon sweater swing will be held Tuesday in the Student Union ballroom. The regular Thursday evening sweater swing will start at 6:15.

Tigert Named Head Coach

When Brumage resigned in 1915, Tigert, former star end at Vanderbilt, became head football coach. His assistants were Jim Park, "Squirey" Tuttle, Le. Arthur Underwood and William Rodas.

Last year's team having been "practically destroyed" by the loss of many varsity members, Tigert set to work to develop a new team. Star of most of his games was the late "Doc" Rodas, who had done outstanding work as quarterback for the 1914 freshman squad. Among substitutes for Rodas was Bart Peck.

With nearly sixty men out for practice, Coach Tigert began the drill for the opening game with Butler University of Indianapolis. Although they finished the game with several players injured, the Wildcats defeated Butler, 33-0. Other victories included Earlham (Richmond, Ind.), Cincinnati, and Louisville.

'Hotly Contested,' Literally Speaking

Then, in what was described by The Kernel as a "hotly contested game"—the thermometer registered 93 degrees in the shade—the "State host to Missouri, A. and M., 13-0. A 7-7 tie with "Wagon" helped morale but injured Rodas "for the rest of the season."

'Do Purdue' Was the cry before the homecoming game with the Boilermakers, heralded as 3-1 favorites. Although the student body was refusing 3-1 bets, the Wildcats had a 7-0 victory, the touchdown scored by Klumpe.

Thanksgiving Day game was scheduled for the following week.
