The Kentucky Gazette.

Lexington, Saturday, Sept. 26th, 1796.

We have access to the Courier, in a day's journey. A copy of the "American Museum," a paper printed at Waltham, Mass., is published once a week, and we mention it because it appears to be a very good work. The proprietor of it is Mr. Benjamin Franklin, who is also the editor. There are some excellent pieces in it, and we recommend it to our readers to take notice of it.

Our correspondent of the "ilih" reports that Miss Cubbs and her party have taken a trip to New York, and that she is highly pleased with her visit. We cannot help wishing that Mr. Franklin would send us a copy of his own paper, as we think it would be of great interest to our readers.

The weather in these parts is very pleasant, and we expect it to continue so for some time. The thermometer stands at 75 degrees, and there is a gentle breeze from the east.

We have received a letter from our friend in New York, and are gratified with the intelligence he has given us. He says that the crops are abundant, and that the people are in want of nothing.

We are informed that the General Assembly of Virginia has passed a resolution declaring war against Great Britain.

We have had a considerable number of visitors at our house lately, and have been much pleased with the society of our friends. We are particularly pleased with the company of Mr. John Adams, who has been with us for several days. He is a most agreeable companion, and we have enjoyed his society very much.

The President of the United States has issued a proclamation declaring war against Great Britain.

The weather is very pleasant, and we expect it to continue so for some time. The thermometer stands at 75 degrees, and there is a gentle breeze from the east.

We have received a letter from our friend in New York, and are gratified with the intelligence he has given us. He says that the crops are abundant, and that the people are in want of nothing.

We are informed that the General Assembly of Virginia has passed a resolution declaring war against Great Britain.

We have had a considerable number of visitors at our house lately, and have been much pleased with the society of our friends. We are particularly pleased with the company of Mr. John Adams, who has been with us for several days. He is a most agreeable companion, and we have enjoyed his society very much.

The President of the United States has issued a proclamation declaring war against Great Britain.

The weather is very pleasant, and we expect it to continue so for some time. The thermometer stands at 75 degrees, and there is a gentle breeze from the east.

We have received a letter from our friend in New York, and are gratified with the intelligence he has given us. He says that the crops are abundant, and that the people are in want of nothing.

We are informed that the General Assembly of Virginia has passed a resolution declaring war against Great Britain.

We have had a considerable number of visitors at our house lately, and have been much pleased with the society of our friends. We are particularly pleased with the company of Mr. John Adams, who has been with us for several days. He is a most agreeable companion, and we have enjoyed his society very much.

The President of the United States has issued a proclamation declaring war against Great Britain.

The weather is very pleasant, and we expect it to continue so for some time. The thermometer stands at 75 degrees, and there is a gentle breeze from the east.

We have received a letter from our friend in New York, and are gratified with the intelligence he has given us. He says that the crops are abundant, and that the people are in want of nothing.

We are informed that the General Assembly of Virginia has passed a resolution declaring war against Great Britain.

We have had a considerable number of visitors at our house lately, and have been much pleased with the society of our friends. We are particularly pleased with the company of Mr. John Adams, who has been with us for several days. He is a most agreeable companion, and we have enjoyed his society very much.

The President of the United States has issued a proclamation declaring war against Great Britain.

The weather is very pleasant, and we expect it to continue so for some time. The thermometer stands at 75 degrees, and there is a gentle breeze from the east.

We have received a letter from our friend in New York, and are gratified with the intelligence he has given us. He says that the crops are abundant, and that the people are in want of nothing.

We are informed that the General Assembly of Virginia has passed a resolution declaring war against Great Britain.

We have had a considerable number of visitors at our house lately, and have been much pleased with the society of our friends. We are particularly pleased with the company of Mr. John Adams, who has been with us for several days. He is a most agreeable companion, and we have enjoyed his society very much.