For Easter Seal Child

It's Been A Good Year

BY MARY ANNE WOOD
Timmy Murphy thinks it's been a good year. At age ten, Timmy not only became Kentucky's Easter Seal poster boy, but he also began attending school for the first time.

There are lots of fringe benefits to being Easter Seal poster boy, and Timmy Murphy, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Murphy, 7512 Glaser Road, will be the first to tell you with words and his infectious smile that he "likes it."

"A Lucky Dog"

His classmates at Slaughter Elementary School called him "a lucky dog" when Timmy told them his old secret of being the poster boy. "He had known since November and had kept his secret well," says his mother, Mrs. Kenneth Murphy. "They were really happy it was me," Timmy added.

"I feel like the luckiest boy in the world" was Timmy's overwhelming reaction to his day in Frankfort with the Governor and other state leaders. Timmy presented Governor Nunn with the first sheet of the 1968 Easter Seals. During Timmy's Easter-Seal poster reign, he represents 4,000 crippled children who benefit from Easter-Seal donations.

If you asked Timmy why he thinks he was selected, he couldn't tell you. But if you ever met him, you wouldn't have to ask. Smiles simultaneously appear with a flood of words. Timmy likes to talk. But he gets "A's" in conduct, because, as he puts it, "When Miss Kelly (his teacher) says get to work, I get to work."

"Show And Tell"

But during Show and Tell time, Timmy has a lot to talk about. It's not every fellow who is introduced at half time of U. of L.'s last home basketball game. Who got him tickets? None other than his good buddy Coach Camp, U. of L.'s head football coach. Earlier in the basketball season, Coach Camp sent Timmy information on all the players and included all their autographs.

There is little wonder why Timmy, when interviewed at the U. of L. - Bellarmine hall time, showed his preference to U. of L. by saying, "Go U. of L."

He also told his classmates about meeting Mr. YMCA on the "Morning Show." Timmy was amazed at Mr. YMCA's muscles perhaps more than most boys because Timmy is a victim of muscle deficiency that confines him to a wheelchair.

After his appearance on television, which he said, "scared me," Timmy was shown around the television studio by Rodney Ford, WAVE's news director.

"Are They Really Hippies?"

Timmy says that the people he meets and "the places I get to go" are the "most fun parts" of being the poster boy. In Frankfort he met the lieutenant governor and the attorney general, talked with one registered lobbyist, saw several members of the Louisville Outlaws lobbying against motorcycle helmets. Mrs. Murphy said Timmy wanted to know: "Mom, are they really hippies?" Before this year, Timmy had been taught by a teacher who visited his home two hours a week. This fall Timmy entered his first classroom, and it's readily evident he's in love with school.

This is the first year that crippled children have been taught in the classroom in the Jefferson County System. Nine students are in Timmy's class. Mrs. Murphy says she can tell "a big difference in Timmy." He's now getting competition - something he didn't have at home.

Every morning a mini bus, a small school bus, picks Timmy up at his home and takes him to Slaughter Elementary. Every morning Miss Patricia Kelly helps lift him out of his wheelchair and off the bus. He reaped pleasure when telling this reporter that he "lets some of the kids ride" his wheelchair when they are tired.

When interviewing Timmy, he referred to his teacher often. Through an accident, he was able to show his appreciation. At this year's kick-off luncheon for the Easter Seal Drive, Timmy drew his teacher's number. She won a red umbrella. There were close to 200 people there.

Outside school and his Easter Seal activities, Timmy is a busy fellow. He may soon qualify as a Louisville zoo keeper. The Murphy family has a menagerie: two cats, one Poodle, an aquarium of fish and three guinea pigs, Vicki, 14 and Jeffrey, 5, share the animal responsibility. He renamed one of his guinea pigs "Louie B," in honor of the Governor after his visit with him.

Every Saturday morning Timmy participates in the Crippled Children's Society. He is president of his group this year, and indicates he has enjoyed calling meetings to discuss various projects with his group. Timmy also takes part in Camp Kysoc every summer.

He says he wants to be a scientist, and presently considers himself a weatherman. His mother attests to his accuracy. Perhaps he'll find his future career to be a scientific weatherman.

EASTER SEAL POSTER BOY Timmy Murphy, 10, is wheeled by his mother, Mrs. Kenneth Murphy. The family lives at 7512 Glaser Road near Fern Creek.

New Teeth Can Be Painful Experience

Teething may have the same significance, and be as uneventful, as growing of nails or hair. This statement takes care of the majority of babies; however, some infants have a difficult and painful experience. There is no way of predicting which infant will suffer through this very necessary growth process.

Teeth normally erupt between the sixth and ninth month of life. The gums appear swollen for several months before the actual teeth appear. Sometimes the gums are discolored and even blue, this is due to the bleeding beneath the gums as the teeth push forward. The swelling and discoloration of the gums does not always signify pain. The pain of teething is unexplainable. Some children suffer and no evidence of swelling is found.

Bleeding of the gums to the outside is very unusual. If this occurs, ask your doctor to examine the infant for other conditions, such as thrush or virus diseases, which may be coincidental to the teething.

Many diseases have been blamed on the act of teething. Such symptoms as diarrhea, runny nose, diaper rash, disturbed sleep, fever, loss of appetite, have all been blamed on teething. Many diseases have progressed too far because the teeth just happened to be erupting when the infant became ill. Your doctor should be notified with the same objective that you would use if the child had a complete set of teeth.

The treatment of this elusive condition of teething has also been the province of grandparents since the beginning of time. They have prescribed everything from sassafras tea to rubbing the gums with Paregoric. Probably the safest and most common remedy was the teething ring. This gadget started out being a piece of leather and now is clear plastic that can be chilled for extra comfort.

Today we also have many ointments to rub on the gums. Also, there are sedatives to be given by mouth.

The most important thing to remember about teething is not to let this ordinary problem be the reason for overlooking some much more central problem. Fever over 101 degrees rectally is not due to teething. Neither is vomiting and diarrhea for more than 24 hours.

10 or 12 whole cloves or 1/4 teaspoon ground cloves
1/2 cup brown sugar
2 bay leaves
1 onion

Ronald E. Foreman Promoted In Army

Ronald F. Foreman, 20, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jonas B. Foreman, and wife, Doris, live at 9901 Watterson Trail, was promoted to Army private pay grade E-2 upon completion of basic combat training at Fort Knox, February 9.

1 can condensed tomato soup (undiluted)
Cut slashes in the fat edge of the ham 2 inches apart and insert cloves. Cover ham slice with brown sugar. Lay bay leaves and sliced onion on top and pour soup over it. Bake for 1-1/2 hours at 350 degrees. Serves 6.

Instead of potatoes, the starchy vegetable in this menu is grits, a favorite of many Southerners. Instant grits cut down cooking time in this recipe. Also, this dish can be made early in the morning and baked before serving later in the day. If members of your family are garlic lovers, use garlic cheese. Otherwise, any sharp cheese may be substituted.

Cheese Grits
4 cups boiling water
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup instant grits
1 stick butter or margarine
1 six-ounce roll cheese (garlic or sharp)

2 eggs
milk (about 1 cup)
Bring salted water to a rolling boil and slowly stir in grits. Cook 3 minutes, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and stir in margarine and cheese. Put eggs in a 2-cup measure and beat well.

Add enough milk to make egg and milk equal 2 cups. Add to grits mixture.

Bake in a greased, 2-quart casserole at 300 degrees for 1, 1-1/2 hours, or until a knife inserted in the center comes out clean.
Bake in a pan of water.
Yield: 6 servings

Beet Relish Salad
Soften one envelope unflavored gelatin in 1/2 cup juice from canned beets. Dissolve in 1 cup boiling water.
Add 3 tablespoons vinegar, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 1 tablespoon sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, stirring until sugar is dissolved. Chill until syrupy.
Fold in 1-1/2 cups diced, canned beets, 1/2 cup diced celery and 3 tablespoons horseradish.

Pour into one large or 6 individual molds.
Chill until firm.
A simple cookie requiring only three ingredients and taking very little preparation time is this finale to your Easter dinner.

Pecan Meringue Cookies
1 egg white, beaten stiff
1 cup brown sugar
1 cup pecan halves
Preheat oven to 450 degrees.
Fold brown sugar into beaten egg white. Add nuts. Grease a cookie sheet and drop with a fork about 2 or 3 nuts and what meringue holds to them.
Turn oven off and bake 15-20 minutes or until cookies are lightly browned and top crust is dry and cracked.
Makes 2-1/2 dozen.
