

Election Night, '68: Members of the Political Science Department kept tabs on the major elections in the computer room. Outside this hub of frontline action others watched it all on the tube. A lot of them were probably really interested. Then again, nothing else was on.

