

how men can live as these do here. But a visit to the Abbey will dispel this mystery to a great extent. Father Cyprian, the Prior, is a man of vast learning, but he will tell you plainly that they are losing this life to gain the next. And should you who read this ever tire of the noise and strife of the world, a brief sojourn at Gethsemani Abbey, with its solitude and quiet peace, will surely bring you rest. No one who knocks is ever refused admittance; a clean, comfortable room and bed are given you, with three excellent meals a day. When you leave no board bill is presented, and the blessings of these good men follow you as you step into the world again.
