

Rosewood, Oct. 26th 1870.
Before breakfast.

My dear Sister:

As I shall have an opportunity to send a letter this morning to Papa, I take time to write a few lines, though it is scarcely light enough to do it.

You may look for me home on the Saturday morning train — next Sunday.

Mother says I must hurry as breakfast will be ready before I am gone.

With love to all.

Your Sister
