

Willie Dillon sent Julia a nice pair of 3 button gloves and they each have a lot of pictures for scrap books they are making. Thine is of paper. Tell Lida that Julia shows more taste & originality in her book than I have. She has a choice piece of poetry on each page, the verses cut apart and illuminated, and interspersed with illustrations appropriate to the picture. One is an ode to Spring then she will have Whittier's Centennial Ode or one, some sentimental, some comic and some serious. I think when I make one for myself I shall make one after that style. I wish Charlotte would have that "City of the Dead" published I would like to have it in printed form.
Julia also has a handsome book her father gave her for household decoration.
She had the most delightful caramels & chocolate cream drops she had made.
I brought home the receipt. They cost about half you pay for them in Louisville & quite as good. I feasted too much as there. Annie had black cake & cider &
