Dean of Men Works on Plans for Entertainment of Freshman Students

FACULTY MEMBERS TO GIVE LECTURE COURSE

Early Inquiries Indicate Very Large First Year Class for 1930

Recent information from the office of C. R. Melcher, dean of men at the Kentucky University, indicates that this year's freshman class will exceed those of former years, despite the generally unfavorable agricultural situation throughout the state.

The program week, while not yet complete, will be formulated with the idea of acquainting the uninformed freshman with the University and enable him to find his way about the campus to his various classes with scant difficulty.

Freshman Week proper will begin Thursday, September 11, at 9 a. m. at Memorial hall. The freshmen will be divided into groups of twenty or thirty and various faculty members will conduct them about the campus, showing them the different buildings and points of interest.

This year it has been planned to give all freshmen their physical examinations on the first day so as to determine their fitness for physical education and military training.

In addition to familiarizing the students with the University campus, a series of talks will be given by selected faculty members, designed to inform the freshman on various things that will be of interest to him.

CAMPUS KERNELS

Since all the scoundrelmongers have departed for greener (and we hope cooler) fields, we have had scant opportunity for satisfying our insatiable desire for bad news of others. Most everybody seems to lack the old vim, vigor and vitality to do more than behave themselves during the present dry spell.

Our old friend Tom Phipps has become so fed up on the present unemployment situation that he has returned to the second summer session. It looks like old times with Ed Greene, Tom Phipps and W. E. Rogers holding court from the furniture at the E. A. house. If "Scalpy" Roberts would only desert Dobbin and his ice wagon long enough to fill up another bench, the picture would be complete.

Sergeant Lister Witherspoon has returned from Camp Knox with harrowing tales of the heat and bewailing the loss of fourteen pounds of weight during his strenuous two weeks training period. "Spoon" reports that he is more and more inclined to agree with Sherman and his characterization of war.

Richard C. Brewer, editor elect of the "Moonshiner" University Humor Magazine for next year, has returned from the wilds of Michigan where he has been gathering local color for his scandal column. We are just about as interested in seeing the initial number as we are in noting the possibilities for a good football team next year.

It has been rather generally mentioned around that "Kentuckians" premier dance orchestra from the University of Kentucky, and composed almost exclusively of University students, will open a six-weeks' engagement at Joyland Casino on August 18. Considering that the music is furnished generally by different parts of the country, this new position is apparently a recognition of the merit of the Kentuckians. We are glad to see them get it.

At last the office force of The Kernel has been able to get back into their old quarters, albeit they have been whittled down by half. We've always felt that one big comfortable chair and desk is all that is needed. When more than one ambitious journalist is around the office at one and the same time, it is an occasion.

DEAN BOYD LEAVES

Dean Paul Prentice Boyd, of the College of Arts and Sciences, left Sunday for Beulah, Mich., to join his family for a month's vacation. Mrs. Boyd, Miss Virginia Boyd and Miss Betty Boyd have spent the entire summer on the lake there.

Second Semester Honor Roll Has Thirteen Names

Thirteen Arts and Sciences Upperclassmen Make "A" Grades for Semester

Exceeding by three the number of students who made straight "A" average for the first semester, 1929-30 in the School of Arts and Sciences, some thirteen students have the record of making a perfect grade in all their courses during the second semester, 1929-30. A survey of the list indicates that with a single exception those who made the honor roll are either Juniors or Seniors, the exception being Miss Bonnie Lee Perkins, Sopomore, Paris, Ky.

A complete list of the students is: Elizabeth Acker, Paducah; Florence Louise Bickel, Huntington, W. Va.; Ruth Bullock, Lexington; Katherine Duval Carr, Lexington; Clyde B. Crawley, Henderson; Effie Delle Hughes, Faubush; Jane Clay Kenney, Paris, Ky.

New Rooms Made In Law Building for Offices and Library

During the last few weeks the department of buildings and grounds has been refinishing the interior of the second floor of the Law building and when completed will add some considerable space to the Law library. The new room which has been added takes over the old senior class room to make way for additional reports which have been purchased. A new senior class room has been constructed in the basement.

The new room that has been added will contain the overflow from the law library and also the Irish Reports. These reports have been recently purchased at a cost of $1,700.00.

University Debaters Meet Berea Teams; Third Debate Series

The third of a series of four debates with Berea College will be a discussion of the subject: "Does Modern Science Tend to Destroy the Belief in a Theistic Faith?"

The first debate will be held at the University of Kentucky, August 8, 1:30 p. m. in the lecture room of McVey hall. The second debate will be held in the chapel at Berea College at 7:30 in the evening, August 8.

In the first debate at Lexington, Mr. Hugh R. Jackson and Mr. Clifford Amyx, of the University, together with Mr. Delbert Eagle, of Berea, will uphold the affirmative side of the question. Mr. Bruce Waters, of the University, and Miss Ada Green and Mr. Carvi Renau, of Berea, will speak on the negative.

In the evening debate at Berea, Mr. Hugh R. Jackson will speak on the affirmative, paired with two speakers from Berea, while Mr. Bruce Waters and Mr. Clifford Amyx, with a representative from Berea will defend the negative.

The subject selected has been discussed twice before by University of Kentucky debaters, with Emory University, before Epworth League groups in Decatur, and at Atlanta, Georgia.

COURTS NEARLY COMPLETE

The two new tennis courts for the use of the co-eds, which have been constructed on Euclid avenue next to Boyd hall, are nearing completion and will be ready for use during August.

All but two of the new faculty members have been employed according to Dean W. E. Taylor of the College of Education, and the other two will be accepted this week. The training school will be under the supervision of Prof. M. E. Ligon.

Announcer Needed

Seven Lawyers Seek Degrees at End of Summer Session

Seven students have made application for degrees from the College of Law of the University of Kentucky to be awarded on the completion of their work at the termination of the summer session, August 22. This is the first time in the history of the University that degrees have been conferred at a formal commencement during the summer session.

Those who have applied for degrees are: Eldred Adams, Spring Station, Ky.; Clarence E. Barnes, Lexington; W. Hubert Buckles, Lexington; William Hodges, Lebanon; Gale McHoney, Lexington; Stanley Powell, Lexington, and Ralph Stevens, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Adams, Buckles, Stevens and Powell took the state bar examination given July 16 and 17, and the remainder probably will take the next examination which is to be given in November.

Experiment Station Holds Annual Field Day Farm Program

The Agricultural Experiment Station of the University of Kentucky, is entertaining the farmers of the State of Kentucky this week in its annual field day program. This is an annual event and if the weather is at all promising several hundred farmers are expected to attend.

The program Thursday is devoted to a consideration of about thirty types of machinery for applying artificial fertilizer. This machinery has been furnished by some six different large machinery manufacturing companies especially for this demonstration. After the display in the morning, the afternoon will be taken up with a demonstration of the different types of machines.

On Friday, August 15, a dairy program is being offered. The chief matter of interest here will be a discussion of the disease, control, feeding, breeding and management of dairy cattle. Speakers from the dairy department of the Agricultural Experiment Station will lecture on these various problems.

Those who will lecture are Dr. W. W. Dimock, Prof. Fordyce Ely, head of the dairy department; Ted S. Besch, field agent, and Mr. John W. Nutter, manager of the Experiment Station dairy.

The training of the student-teacher, who is the assistant in the training school, is superior to the training of the average teacher in any State in the Union, with the possible exception of California.

"There is a skilled teacher in charge of each grade who is responsible at all times for the work of her grade. These teachers are specialists who have been chosen with great care because of the double duty of teaching teachers and teaching children. An earnest effort is made in the school to maintain such standards of excellence in the work that it may at all times be offered as demonstration of good teaching to teachers from all parts of the state," he said.

FORMER LAW STUDENT WINS PRIMARY VOTE

Prominent University Grad in Law Class of 1918 Runs for Office

WAS STUDENT ORATOR WHILE IN UNIVERSITY

Honor Graduate of Law College Was Active in All Student Affairs

Final reports of the August primary election indicate that Virgil Chapman, graduate of the University class of 1918, won the nomination for Congressman from this district by a majority of 9,050 votes. Mr. Chapman was defeated for Congress last time by the landslide during the Hoover election.

Chapman was a very prominent student while enrolled at the University. He was known as "the boy orator of the Pennyrite." Graduating from the law school as an honor student in 1918, the Kentuckian for that year indicates that he was also the orator of his class.

In campus activities he was very prominent. He was a staff member and editor of the Kentucky Law Journal during his last year in school. He was a member of the Y. M. C. cabinet and active in religious work. Other campus activities also claimed his attention.

Chapman was a member of the Kentucky Kernel staff and also a member of Alpha Delta Sigma, national honorary professional advertising fraternity. Listed among his other activities we also find Tau Kappa Alpha.

After finishing school in 1918, Mr. Chapman engaged in the active practice of law and has been very prominent in politics. His various interests have never caused him to forsake the University and he is an active alumni member, and also does a great deal of work in the Transylvania alumni, from which school he is also a graduate.

Prof. W. S. Webb, faculty member of the University and archaeological explorer, described his recent expedition in an address before members of the Lexington Optimist Club at their regular weekly luncheon meeting last week. FORMER STUDENT GETS PROMOTION

Brother of Maury Kemper Advances to High Post in Federal Foreign Service

Graham Kemper, former student of the University, and brother of Maury Kemper, former Commonwealth's attorney here, has been recently raised from Class Four to Class Three of the Federal Foreign Service with a substantial increase in salary.

Mr. Kemper has been in the consular service for more than twenty years. He is a native of Virginia but came to Lexington as a boy and attended the schools and colleges of Lexington. His Bachelor of Science degree was obtained from Transylvania College and his Master of Science degree from the University of Kentucky. He was also awarded the degree of Doctor of Civil Laws by Columbia, Columbia University, a diplomatic school of Washington, D. C.

Mr. Kemper's first foreign assignment was in the Philippine Islands where he was stationed for several years. He was next assigned to the Civil Service department at Washington, and after two years there was sent to South America for another two years.

The outbreak of the war found Mr. Kemper in Germany where he had been then sent to Bohemia, in Austria-Hungary. He has since been stationed at Madeira Islands; Sofia, Belgium; Yokohama, Japan, and at present is in the Bermuda Islands.

On Thursday, August 14th, at 7:30, there will be a meeting of all high school debate coaches in room 331, McVey hall. At that time a proposed extension debate program for next year will be discussed. Plans are being made to hold intercollegiate debates on "Chain Stores" in several state schools for the benefit of high school debaters. All who are interested are urged to attend.

Plans Being Made For First Summer Senior Exercises

Summer Commencement To Be Held for First Time In University History

Although some two weeks yet remain before the first summer commencement program will be given at the University of Kentucky, plans are well under way to develop a program that will rival the offering of the regular session. The same academic formality will prevail at the summer program that is characteristic of the commencement exercises of the regular session.

Advance information tends to indicate that the program will compare favorably with that of the regular session not only in the number of students who will be awarded degrees, but also in the character of the program. To date some hundred and sixty-three students have made application for their degrees, their graduation depending, of course, on their successful completion of the work of the present term.

Included in the applicants for degrees is to be found some 58 applicants for the master's degree. Since these applicants have several days yet in which to complete their work on these, it is not definitely known how many intend to finish their work and receive degrees at the end of the present session.

The commencement speaker who has been selected is Dr. G. Bronson Oxnam, president of De Pauw University, Greencastle, Ind., who will deliver the principal address at the exercises August 22.

U. K. Golfers Will Compete at Ashland

A golf tournament to be held at the Ashland Country Club and beginning Tuesday, August 12, will doubtless see many of the former University stars in action. Although the entries have not yet been received, several of the more prominent University stars have signified their intention of competing.

DEAN EVANS SPEAKS

Evans, of the College of Law of the University, discussed the naval disarmament conference at the regular weekly luncheon meeting of the Lexington Altruza Club last Friday at the Lafayette hotel. ANN RODES BETTER

INFINITE VARIETY IN STRAW HATS FOR ECCENTRIC MAN AFFORDS HIM CHANCE TO EXPLOIT HIS INDIVIDUAL TASTES

By A. J. KERTIS, JR. "Look at your hat—everybody else does!" is a command to women, but it is merely an advertising slogan to most men. It is useless to talk about women and hats, but it is very interesting to discuss men and hats, because most men wear these strange devices or, at least, have one for emergency. The few who neither wear nor own them are still regarded as eccentric, and to these few, comparatively speaking, has been applied an epithet, "collegiate"—a word which carries a stigma equalled only by one other, "intelligent."

The origin of hats for men is not known. Perhaps in the Dark Ages some man with an "intelligence bump" on his head, wishing to keep his light under a bushel, invented a device beneath which he might hide his altogether-too-noticable mark of intellectuality. If it so happened, then, that bump must have died a sudden death; but unfortunately, the "bump concealer" has persisted to the present day.

There are two chief varieties of hats—felt and straw hats. (Many people are so inclined to classify them all under the single classification, namely—the bad!) Straw hats are made of nearly every material which does not resemble straw and they are worn to be thrown in the air; or to be pulled down over the other fellow's ears when "the local boy" knocks the ball into the bleachers. Those who are not baseball fans do not know what to do with their straw hats after the middle of September.

There is an almost infinite variety of straw hats. Some are made with a short brim or with a wide one, with a high crown or low one with

FOOTBALL FANS LOOK FORWARD TO FIRST GAME

Prospects for the 1930 Wildcat Football Team Looks Good to All

PROMISING SOPHS TO REPLACE GRADS

Schedule for This Year One of Most Ambitious Ever Attempted

By C. E. BARNES Although practically a month remains until the Wildcats will be climbing into their moleskins to tame the many toters of the pigskin on the gridiron, and although the weather lacks much of being ideal for football, the minds of many, and particularly that of Harry Gamage, head football coach, are being directed to a consideration of the Wildcat football team for 1930.

Even the most pessimistic scribe would confess that the prospects for a gridiron machine of sterling caliber is in the offing for next year. Many of the old timers, staunch behemoths who have written football history for the University of Kentucky will be missing from the lineup, but there will be many ambitious youngsters about to take their places.

Practically all of the boys are working hard this summer and many are enduring the unpleasantness of hot weather to fit themselves for what promises to be a big year for Kentucky football enthusiasts. Hardly a week goes by but what seems of the more anxious are to be seen wandering aimlessly about Stoll field, thinking no doubt, of the struggles in which they have engaged thereon. Some of the more energetic secure a football and toss it about on the scrimmage field anticipating the time when that will be the order of the day.

The schedule for this year is one of the most ambitious ever undertaken by a Kentucky University team. The season opens October 4, a night game with Sewanee. From past history the Wildcats have learned not to take the football with Sewanee lightly. During the early season, advantages are largely nullified and most any game is a struggle from start to finish.

The next week, October 11, sees the Wildcats in action with Maryville furnishing the competition. Even this game is no light workout. October 18 is the annual struggle with Washington and Lee, and after the struggle on a Stoll field of last year, everybody is agreed that most anything can happen in a game with the Virginians. The week-end of October 25, Virginia University, a newcomer to the ranks that suffer defeat on Stoll field, will be the guests of the Wildcats in a four-period struggle. Athletics at the University of Virginia are being constantly bettered and a contest of no mean proportions can be assured.

November 1 is the Homecoming game with the University of Alabama here. After the events of last year one should know ahead of time that the Wildcats will be out to erase the single blot on their 1929-30 record. Playing on their home field, and with the Crimson Tide playing their first year under a new coach, we would place our pre-season money on the Wildcats.

On the week of November 8, the Wildcats journey to Durham, N. C. to play Duke University. Athletic history recorded last year indicates that the North Carolina school is quite likely to turn out a team that is not to be taken lightly.

On Dad's Day, November 15, the Wildcats will endeavor to display their best wares before their fathers and against the best that Virginia Military Institute has to offer. This is another game that always affords worthwhile entertainment.

12 Teachers Enroll During Summer for Journalistic Work

Seeking ideas for the supervision of student newspapers for the teaching of journalism or journalistic writing, twelve teachers from high schools and colleges in four states, Oklahoma, West Virginia, Texas and Kentucky, were students in the first summer session enrolled in a special course offered for the first time by the department of journalism of the University.

These teachers comprise about a fourth of the students enrolled in summer school classes. Practical work of all kinds was taken up by the classes, and particularly the fine points dealing with the management of school papers.
